INDUSTRIAL ELEGANCE RECREATED

Proudly located on its own island site at the entranceway to Clerkenwell Green, The Buckley Building is an imposing presence within the bustling area of Clerkenwell and Farringdon moments from the Farringdon Elizabeth Line station.

Extensive modifications have re-imagined this 1930s warehouse for a bright future in a vibrant area, providing 89,050 sq ft of modern office space with a sophisticated industrial aesthetic.

HISTORY

Formerly known as Woodbridge House, the Buckley Building has a rich industrial heritage dating back to the 1930s. Originally constructed as a factory, it was designed by the industrial architects Fuller, Hall & Foulsham and built speculatively by the Seckford Charity between 1936 and 1939.

Central Atrium in 1996

Exterior in 1994

One of its earliest uses was as a Blue Indigo Dye Factory – a legacy being subtly honoured in the building's contemporary redesign through the use of blue tones.

In the 1980s, the building was converted to office use, concealing much of its strong industrial aesthetic.

Named after BGY founder, Richard Buckley, this building embodies BGY's approach to architectural refinement – uncovering, enhancing, and reinterpreting its original design for the needs of the twenty-first century.

END OF TRIP FACILITIES

With the addition of a new cycle entrance on Hayward's Place, The Buckley Building enhances its commuter-friendly credentials, featuring secure cycle storage for 113 bikes and direct access to the office floors. Additional amenities include 130 lockers, 11 showers, hairdryers, and straighteners. Designed to establish a more prominent presence along Hayward's Place, the entrance respects existing architectural datums and uses a complementary material palette to maintain visual cohesion with the building's recent enhancements.

LONDON'S HISTORIC HEART

Clerkenwell has long been a hub for creativity, design, and innovation. Today, it's a destination where architects, tech start-ups, media agencies, and global brands converge. Its vibrant character, walkable neighbourhoods, and deep-rooted history make it one of London's most desirable locations for companies seeking to inspire their teams and impress their clients.

ON YOUR DOORSTEP

Start your morning with artisan coffee from Compton Coffee or Prufrock, enjoy lunch at local favourites like St. John, The Eagle, or Luca, and wind down at The Slaughtered Lamb or The Sekforde all within a few minutes' walk. For teams who value both character and connectivity, The Buckley Building offers a truly unbeatable location where old London meets new ideas.

EXPLORE LONDON AND BEYOND FROM FARRINGDON

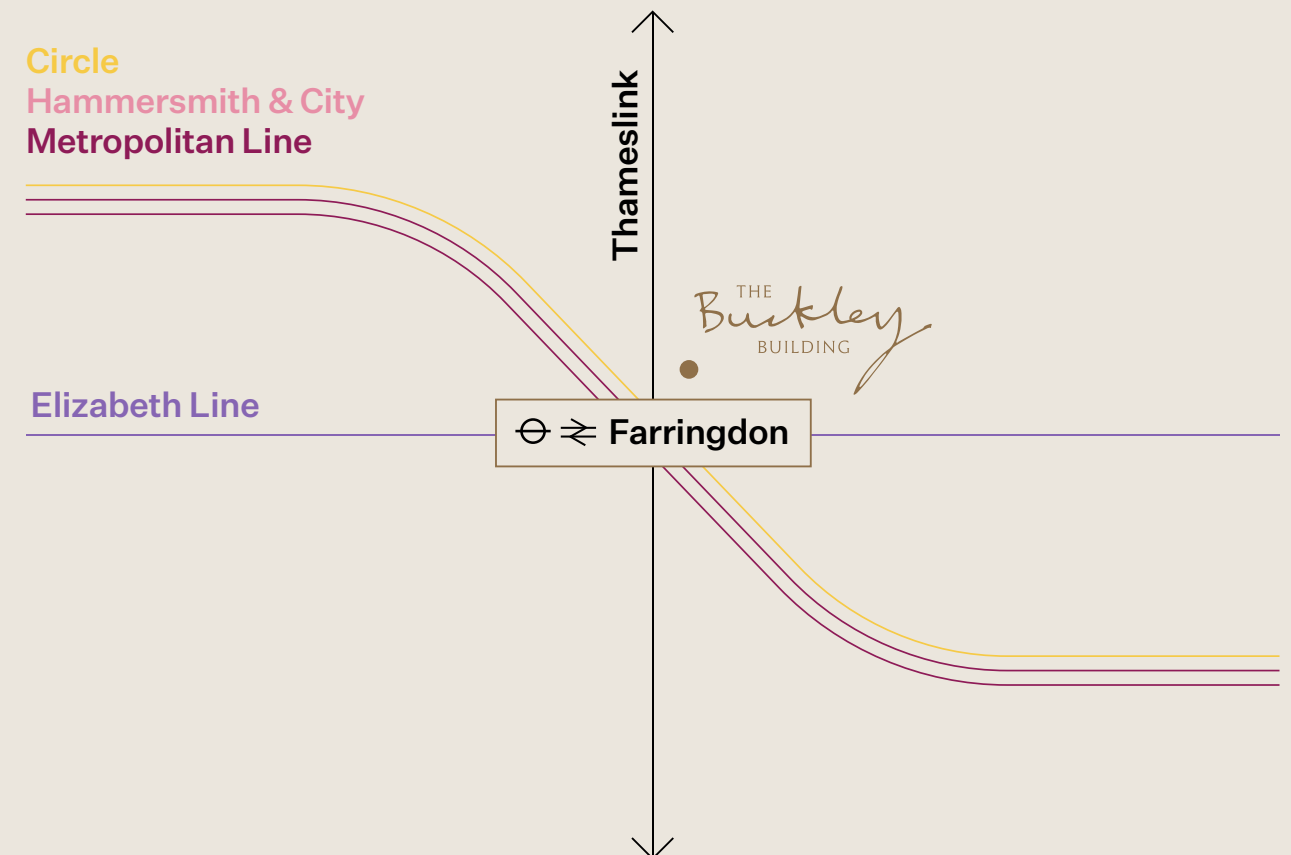

Farringdon Station sits at the heart of one of London's most connected transport hubs. With access to the Elizabeth line, Thameslink, and three Underground lines (Circle, Hammersmith & City, and Metropolitan), it offers fast, direct links across the capital and beyond, from Heathrow to Canary Wharf, Brighton to Luton, and everything in between.

All travel times listed are from Farringdon Station.

Just moments from Farringdon Station, one of London's best-connected transport hubs, tenants benefit from seamless access to:

- ⊖ Farringdon Station: 5 minute walk Elizabeth Line, Thameslink, Circle, Hammersmith & City, Metropolitan
- ⊖ Barbican Station: 9 minute walk
- ⊖ Chancery Lane & Old Street Stations: both within 15 minutes
- ⇒ Direct connections to Heathrow, Gatwick, Luton, and Canary Wharf

To reinforce our commitment, we are pursuing third-party verified Green Building Certifications, including:

- EPC A
- BREEAM 'Outstanding'
- WELL Enabled 'Platinum'
- NABERS UK DfP 5 Star (Base Building)

In addition, we are collaborating with Motionspot, an inclusive design consultancy that places people at the center of the built environment. Their award-winning approach creates spaces that support diversity and inclusivity.

Through these initiatives, The Buckley Building is establishing a new standard for sustainable development and responsible, human-centered design.

A COMMITMENT TO SUSTAINABILITY

At The Buckley Building, our ESG strategy is built on five key principles: Net Zero Carbon, Circular Economy, Health & Wellbeing, Social Value, Biodiversity, and Wider Sustainability.

Our progress is measured through Key Performance Indicators (KPIs), tracked via a Sustainability Scorecard to ensure accountability and success. A clear roadmap guides our development teams in achieving these goals.

TEAM

A VISION BROUGHT TO LIFE BY INDUSTRY LEADERS

The transformation of The Buckley Building is the result of a considered and collaborative effort between a team of visionary partners:

BGY

The renowned architectural studio behind the design.

V7

The progressive development team driving innovation.

CBRE Investment Management

The trusted landlord partner with a deep understanding of market dynamics.

Together, they've reimaged this historic building into a bold, modern workplace designed for the next generation of business.
