Location Overview

Walnut Grove and Tyler Island are situated in the heart of California's San Joaquin River Delta in southwestern Sacramento County. This historic Delta community lies along the Sacramento River and is surrounded by the region's characteristic network of levee protected islands, sloughs, and waterways. The area is approximately 20 miles south of Lodi and 29 miles south of Sacramento, with convenient access via State Highway 160 and local Delta roads including Tyler Island Road. Renowned for its deep, fertile organic peat soils and mild, water-moderated climate, the Walnut Grove Tyler Island vicinity has supported intensive agriculture for generations, historically producing asparagus and pears and now sustaining a diverse mix of row crops, field crops, and specialty farming. The North Delta benefits from the North Delta Water Agency and commonly features senior pre-1914 riparian water rights with efficient siphon irrigation from adjacent channels. These lands are protected under Sacramento County agricultural zoning and the Delta Protection Commission's Primary Zone, supported by established reclamation district levee infrastructure that has enabled long-term productive farming in one of Northern California's most water-secure agricultural regions.
