Description

Straus Haus at 50 Great Sutton Street embodies the character of Clerkenwell's heritage while offering a forward-thinking workspace designed for modern occupiers. Once home to a renowned bag manufacturer, this building has a rich history that our client, Nuveen, is carefully preserving. Instead of opting for demolition, they have chosen a sustainable route, merging and restoring two adjacent properties into a single, architecturally inspiring workspace spanning approximately 55,000 Ft<sup>2</sup>. This approach respects the character of the original structures while modernising them to meet contemporary standards—ideal for a high-profile HQ occupier.

The property also benefits from flexible use on the ground and lower ground floors, which hold a

Location

Situated in the heart of Clerkenwell, Straus Haus is surrounded by a vibrant cultural scene and enjoys exceptional connectivity to neighbouring districts, including Old Street, Shoreditch, Smithfield, and Angel. The Barbican Centre, with its renowned arts and events, is nearby, as are the bustling Cowcross Street and Clerkenwell Green, known for their array of shops, cafes, and restaurants. The stylish Zetter Townhouse, a chic boutique hotel with a cocktail lounge, further enriches the area's unique blend of creativity and charm, while Compton Coffee House on St John's Square is a local favourite, popular with both residents and office workers alike.

Smithfield is also undergoing a major transformation with the new Museum of London, and Angel
