CASTLE ROCK OVERVIEW

Positioned along the Interstate 25 corridor midway between Denver and Colorado Springs, Castle Rock is the county seat of Douglas County and one of the fastest growing communities on the Front Range. The population has grown more than 16 percent since 2020 and now stands near 86,000. Businesses benefit from direct highway access, a deep and highly educated labor pool, and a retail draw that extends well beyond town limits through the Outlets at Castle Rock, the Promenade at Castle Rock, and the Castle Rock Adventist Hospital campus. Continued residential and commercial development, paired with a business friendly town government and one of the strongest household income bases in the state, has made Castle Rock an increasingly attractive location for retail, restaurant, medical, and service users seeking long term growth.

Downtown Castle Rock is in the middle of a historic reinvestment cycle centered on Wilcox Street. The Riverwalk, Encore, and Mercantile Commons developments have delivered hundreds of new residences, offices, and ground floor storefronts within a few blocks, and the redesigned Festival Park anchors a walkable district that stays active seven days a week. Households in Castle Rock are characterized by strong income levels and a young, established population. The median household income is roughly $145,000, well above the national median, and a median age in the mid 30s reflects a consumer base in its prime earning and spending years. These fundamentals support a resilient local economy and sustained demand for downtown retail space. The local retail market is one of the tightest on the Front Range. Castle Rock retail vacancy finished 2025 at 1.1 percent compared to 4.1 percent across metro Denver, and Town sales tax revenue grew 15.7 percent year over year, nearly triple the prior year's pace. The Outlets at Castle Rock posted record sales of $503 per square foot, and commercial and retail construction permits jumped from roughly 51,000 square feet in 2024 to more than 214,000 square feet in 2025. Unemployment sits at 3.3 percent, below both the state and national rates, and the Economic Development Council reported 70 active development prospects at year end.

Momentum is strongest in the downtown core. Sixteen new businesses opened downtown in 2025, and Riverwalk Luxe at 221 Wilcox, directly across the street from the property, delivered fully leased with Playa Bowls, Homegrown Tap and Dough, and Buff City Soap on the ground floor. The View completed construction with 221 apartments and 100 public parking spaces, the historic City Hotel at 415 Perry is being restored with a 33 room boutique hotel and rooftop bar, and Bombtrack purchased 512 Wilcox to keep 52 jobs downtown. Just west of downtown, the 31 acre Brickyard broke ground on a 144,000 square foot sports center, a 123 room hotel, 466 residences, and 96,400 square feet of restaurant and retail space, all connected to the core by trail and by Praxis Street. Downtown Castle Rock is adding residents, jobs, hotel rooms, and foot traffic at the same time, and Wilcox Street is the spine of all of it.
