OCCUPATIONAL MARKET COMMENTARY

Occupier demand for modern industrial and logistics units remains strong across London and M25 markets with demand exceeding supply in most locations. The occupational market continues to be driven by the changes brought about by the accelerated structural transition to online retail sales, UK population growth and increased online fulfilment infrastructure into the wider retail market.

Rental growth in London continues to accelerate, with prime London rents consistently breaking new territory. This change has been presaged by the erosion of industrial land in the capital. The vast majority of the UK remains undersupplied with buildings fit for modern occupiers' requirements, in particular with smaller last mile facilities.

Watford is a hot spot for occupiers outside of the traditional 'last mile logistics' sector.
