Property History

Constructed in 1910 and expanded 1913, the G. F. & J. Galt & Co. Wholesale Grocers Warehouse recalls Calgary's historic status as the most important wholesale and distribution centre between Winnipeg and Vancouver. Due to Calgary's location on both the C.P.R. east-west mainline and the company's important north-south line between Fort Macleod and Edmonton, the city was destined to become a major regional distribution centre. From Calgary's wholesale district, local and national companies supplied the growing city and region with a wide array of merchandise including farm machinery and parts, groceries, dry goods, building supplies and hardware.

The original building was built in 1910 for the Calgary branch office and warehouse of G. F. & J. Galt & Co., wholesale grocers and tea importers founded in Winnipeg in 1882, which by 1906 also had offices in Calgary, Edmonton, and Vancouver. Within a couple of years the building had become the home to Campbell, Wilson & Horne Ltd., wholesale grocers.

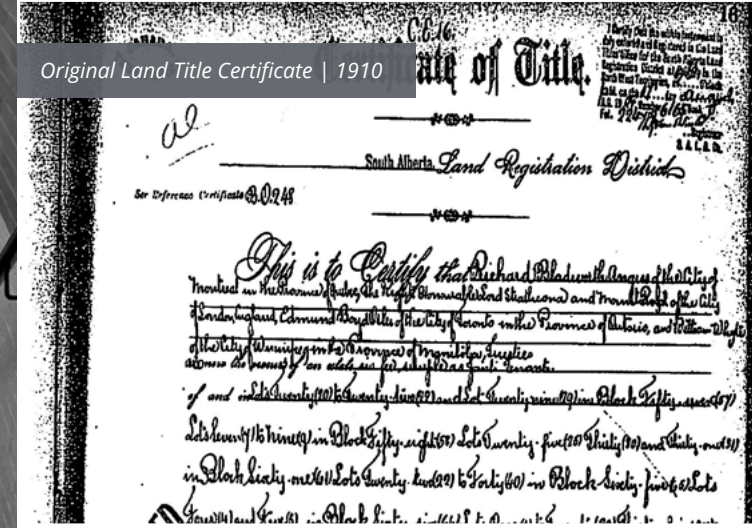

The Warehouse is significant for its Romanesque Revival style-architecture, and is one of the largest structures to have been constructed in the wholesale and warehouse district. The heavy-timber and brick warehouse is notable for its heavily corbelled brick cornice and its many, regularly spaced window bays. Other notable characteristics include the rock-faced sandstone foundation, multiple front entrances and the rear loading platform.

Location History

The Warehouse contributed to the development of the northern Beltline area as Calgary's main wholesale/warehouse district, and continues to contribute to the warehouse district's historic identity and character.

Originally, the principle warehouse district was situated north of the C.P.R. mainline along Eight and Ninth avenues. However, the district along 10th and 11th avenues was established after 1903 when a rail siding off the CPR main line was placed down the alley between 10th and 11th Avenues, from 5th Street SE to 6th Street SW; another siding subsequently and incrementally developed extended from 13th Street SW to 6th St SW. These sidings gave each warehouse along those avenues direct rail access for receiving and shipping cargo via its own rear loading dock. Sixty-four wholesale and warehouse building were situated along both the north and south sides of the C.P.R mainline in 1906, with 160 by 1913.

By the later date, however, the majority were located in the northern part of the Beltline. The number of warehouse buildings in the area has been significantly reduced over the years and this warehouse is integral to the remaining group of warehouses and the retention of the area's character which is defined by the warehouses.
