EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Formerly operated as a full-service yacht repair facility and boatyard, the site offers direct waterfront access with 110 feet of vertical clearance and 7-9 feet depth at the shoreline. The property consists of five parcels, with one parcel zoned E-1 and four parcels zoned C-2, offering potential flexibility for future redevelopment, subject to zoning requirements and governmental approvals.

This approximately 2.79-acre waterfront property presents a rare redevelopment opportunity directly across from Weedon Island Preserve, one of north St. Petersburg's most distinctive natural and recreational destinations. The preserve's mangrove shorelines, paddling trails, fishing access, walking paths, birdwatching, and environmental programming create a unique natural setting that enhances the property's appeal.

The property is adjacent to Amara Bay Residences & Marina, a major waterfront development planned to introduce more than 400 residences, an approximately 8,000-square-foot waterfront restaurant, a public marina, a waterfront boardwalk, recreational amenities, and limited marina-oriented retail. This substantial investment is expected to bring additional residents, dining, boating activity, and pedestrian traffic to the Snug Harbor waterfront.

With approximately 2.79 acres, direct water frontage, five parcels, access to two major airports, proximity to both downtown markets, and a distinctive position across from protected natural lands, the property offers a combination of scale, location, and redevelopment potential that is difficult to replicate in the Tampa Bay market, further strengthening the site's connectivity for residents, visitors, and commercial users.
