Introduction

Grow your business in a little piece of Torontonion history at 214 King Street West.

Built in 1911, this six-storey building, retaining its original charming façade exterior with its brick and beam build, is situated in the heart of the financial and theatre district. Between the years of 1976 to 1978 the building underwent extensive renovations ultimately converting it from a GE warehouse into an office building. Throughout the renovations, the original character-defining elements have kept this building a truly distinctive figure in the city for over 110 years.
