LOS LAGOS GOLF CLUB

Los Lagos Golf Club is a public 18-hole championship golf facility carved out of the desert landscape in the Colorado River Valley. The course was designed by renowned architect Ted Robinson, Sr. and opened in 2007. It's often described as an impressive "oasis in the desert," with rolling fairways, water features, and scenic mountain views from many tee boxes. The layout offers four sets of tees, making it suitable and enjoyable for golfers of a wide range of skill levels — from beginners to more experienced players. The course plays as a par 72 from the longer tees with yardages stretching over 6,800 yards, and features a complete practice facility, including a driving range and short-game areas. Water hazards come into play on several holes, adding both visual appeal and strategic interest to the round. In addition to golf, Los Lagos has amenities that include banquet and event spaces often used for weddings, tournaments, and social gatherings, as well as food and beverage options near the clubhouse. Over the years the club has seen investment and improvements under local ownership aimed at enhancing the overall experience for players and visitors alike. Overall, the course is considered a solid value in the Tri-State golf market — offering a challenging yet friendly layout with beautiful desert and mountain vistas. Embedded in the growing The Greens at Los Lagos community!
