ZONING INFORMATION

MX-3

The MX-3 zoning district in Boise, Idaho—Mixed-Use 3— represents the city's most urban and high-intensity mixed-use designation. Primarily located in Downtown Boise and along key growth corridors, MX-3 is designed to encourage dense, pedestrian-oriented development that blends residential, retail, office, hospitality, and civic uses within the same project. This zoning supports true live-work-play environments, promoting active streetscapes and vertical integration of uses in Boise's most dynamic submarkets.

MX-3 allows for a broad range of permitted uses, including multi-family residential, ground-floor retail, restaurants and bars, professional offices, hotels, entertainment venues, and institutional spaces. The district is structured to encourage commercial activity at street level while accommodating residential or office uses above, maximizing both land efficiency and long-term revenue potential. Height allowances and density are among the most generous in the city, subject to applicable overlays and design standards, making it well-suited for mid- and high-rise development.

Backed by strong infrastructure, transit access, and pedestrian connectivity, MX-3 parcels are positioned in some of Boise's most sought-after urban locations. For developers and investors, this zoning provides the flexibility to respond to evolving market demand while maintaining an urban form that aligns with the city's long-term growth vision. Whether the end user is a multifamily operator, hotel group, office investor, or mixed-use developer, MX-3 offers scale, versatility, and lasting value in Boise's core.
