

An aerial photograph of a city street, likely in Leicester, showing a mix of historic and modern architecture. On the left is a historic brick building with arched windows. In the center is a modern, multi-story brick building with a flat roof and numerous windows. To the right is another historic brick building. The street is narrow and has a few cars parked. The Savills logo is in the top left corner.

Leicester is one of the UK’s leading regional cities, home to two universities with a combined full time student population of approximately 40,000. The city sits at the heart of the UK and is recognised as a major commercial, logistics and administrative centre within the East Midlands, located around 45 miles north-east of Birmingham and 100 miles north of London.

With an economy worth around £23 billion, Leicester and Leicestershire form the largest economy in the East Midlands, supported by over 42,000 businesses and a workforce of more than one million people within a 45-minute drive time.

The city has established strengths in manufacturing, logistics, professional services and higher education, attracting a range of national and international businesses. Leicester is home to major employers including Next, Walkers / PepsiCo, Samworth Brothers, Dunelm, University of Leicester and De Montfort University, reinforcing the city’s position as a key economic destination in the Midlands.

CONNECTIVITY

Located on Marble Street in Leicester city centre, The Nest benefits from an ultra-prime location just a 5-minute walk from De Montfort University and within easy reach of the University of Leicester.

Leicester Train Station (0.6 miles) and St Margaret’s Bus Station (0.7 miles) are both within walking distance, providing excellent sustainable regional and national connections.

SITUATION

The property is situated within Leicester city centre, occupying a prominent position within the established student and educational quarter.

The Nest is situated within the core of the city centre, within close proximity to De Montfort University, the University of Leicester and Leicester Railway Station.

The city's principal retail amenities, including Highcross Shopping Centre, Leicester Market and St Martin's Square, are all within approximately 0.5 miles of the property (10 minutes' walk, Google Maps).

The scheme is surrounded by a wide range of leisure amenities, including cafés, restaurants and cultural attractions such as Curve Theatre and the King Richard III Visitor Centre.

LEICESTER CITY STUDENT ECONOMY

Leicester is one of the UK's leading Higher Education centres, home to both De Montfort University and the University of Leicester. Together, the institutions support a full time student population of approximately 40,000, creating a substantial and resilient demand base for well-located PBSA across the city.

De Montfort University is located in the heart of Leicester city centre and accommodates more than 20,000 full time students, whilst the University of Leicester, a prestigious research-led institution, is home to a full time student population of approximately 19,000 and 4,000 staff. Both universities attract significant numbers of international students and are recognised for excellence in disciplines including business, technology, engineering, healthcare, space science and life sciences.

The universities make a significant contribution to Leicester's economy, supporting employment, research, innovation and inward investment. Combined with the city's excellent rail and motorway connectivity and ongoing regeneration initiatives, Leicester has established itself as one of the East Midlands' most attractive student accommodation markets.

THE NEST, LEICESTER
